| Hiring Office: | Reproductive Health (RH) Unit
UNFPA Philippines Country Office (CO) |
| Purpose of consultancy: | Access to family planning is essential for women to join the workforce and to remain active in the formal economy. Women’s participation in the formal economy is crucial for economic growth and for companies’ ability to recruit and retain workers. A 2016 report by the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) recognizes health concerns, which includes difficult access to family planning, as one of the key hindrances to women’s economic participation. The Private Sector M&E Analyst shall assist the Country Office in the process documentation on the implementation of Family Planning in the workplace program implemented by UNFPA Philippines. She/He is expected to generate evidence on the positive contribution of the project in ensuring universal access to SRH information and services in the business sector. The Analyst shall also develop recommendations on how to disseminate evidence generated and on how to effectively use the said evidence to influence relevant SRH policies and programmes. |
| Scope of work: | The Private Sector Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) Analyst will be responsible for the following:
1. Assists the Country Office in identifying and studying sustainable SRH models in the business/private sector;
2. Develop a report on at least four sustainability models as options for scaling up or replicability of the SRH private sector model. Each model should show a clear pathway or logic of development, analysis, testing and validation. Using case studies, each model should be able to capture best practices and lessons learned by early adopters of the programme; and
3. Assists in developing the monitoring system for UNFPA’s work in promoting SRH in the private sector. Such system should be developed in coordination with other stakeholders, including partner companies. The monitoring system shall include a monitoring framework and tools. |
